Quarterly fund commentary

The fourth quarter saw further spells of financial market volatility led by continued trade tensions between the US and China, fears of recession, and Brexit concerns. Against this backdrop, the Invesco Active Multi-Sector Credit Fund delivered negative total returns. We believe that Europe is attractive from a fundamental perspective, relative to the US and Asia. We remain more defensive and have a healthy amount of liquidity in the fund to put to work as opportunities to invest in companies with strong fundamentals arise. In the US, the current growth and inflation outlook is consistent with two hikes in 2019. In Europe, the ECB is not expected to hike until the fourth quarter of 2019, which is largely consensus. In China, policy has been overall easing to combat some of the credit growth concerns seen earlier this summer. In China, expect policymakers to focus on fiscal spending in 2019. Macro indicators point to slower, but still above potential growth in 2019 in the US as the economy becomes more vulnerable to an end-of-cycle auto sector, slowing housing and a tightening Fed. Further, fiscal policy is less certain in the second half of 2019. In Europe, the domestic story remains strong but is at the mercy of political uncertainties (Brexit, US-Europe trade, and Italy). From China, expect mid-single digit growth in 2019. While the team does not yet see evidence for a shut down in growth (either globally or in the US), caution is warranted given looming risks mentioned above. Overall, the first quarter should be about stabilization in the US, Europe and China, rather than a continued.

Risk Warnings

The value of investments and any income will fluctuate (this may partly be the result of exchange rate fluctuations) and investors may not get back the full amount invested. Debt instruments are exposed to credit risk which is the ability of the borrower to repay the interest and capital on the redemption date. Changes in interest rates will result in fluctuations in the value of the fund. The fund uses derivatives (complex instruments) for investment purposes, which may result in the fund being significantly leveraged and may result in large fluctuations in the value of the fund. The fund may hold a large amount of Asset Backed Securities (ABS) (complex instruments) as well as other lower quality debt securities which may impact the liquidity of the fund under certain circumstances. The Fund may invest in a dynamic way across assets/asset classes, which may result in periodic changes in the risk profile, underperformance and/or higher transaction costs. The fund may invest in distressed securities which carry a significant risk of capital loss. As a large portion of the fund is invested in less developed countries, you should be prepared to accept significantly large fluctuations in the value of the fund. Investments in debt instruments which are of lower credit quality may result in large fluctuations in the value of the fund.
