Quarterly fund commentary

Asia Pacific ex Japan equity markets enjoyed a broad-based rally in Q1. A wide range of positive macroeconomic data strengthened investor expectations for growth in Asia. Moreover, a number of Asian currencies appreciated versus the US dollar, which benefited market returns. In China, confidence in the economy continued to improve, despite the government taking steps to cool the property market. In India, better-than-expected 4Q GDP growth eased concerns over the potential impact of demonetisation. While many ASEAN countries have infrastructure build-out plans, their equity markets lagged over the quarter due to lingering concerns over US trade policy. In terms of sector performance, infrastructure-related sectors benefited from expectations for greater fiscal stimulus. The energy and materials sectors made gains as commodity prices held up, while supply continued to be scaled back, especially in China. In industrials, there were gains amongst engineering companies and heavy machinery manufacturers in a number of countries. Conversely, the less economically sensitive telecoms and utilities sectors lagged the broader market. We continue to favour companies with sustainable earnings growth in sectors such as industrials, telecoms and utilities. In terms of country positioning, we maintained a tilt towards China, India and ASEAN countries.
