Quarterly fund commentary

Most Asian equity markets brushed off the "Brexit" vote to end Q2 higher, helped by the Federal Reserve signalling that US interest rates would remain lower for longer. China's equity market rose marginally as the economic data stabilised, but challenges remain evident by the slowdown in manufacturing and mining investment. India's equity market gained on the BJP's performance in local government elections and the approval of the Bankruptcy Code, a tool to help banks clean up their balance sheets, while the Philippines equity market rose on hopes that the Duterte administration will deliver on economic policy. We seek to invest in companies whose share prices are substantially below our estimate of fair value. The fund's exposure to China reflects a preference for companies exposed to the 'new economy' and favourable structural growth trends in consumption, rather than state-owned companies in industrial sectors. We added to holdings: a Taiwanese measuring instruments company given its track record of stable profits and cash flow; a manufacturer of high-quality moulds and parts for photocopiers which is showing earnings momentum; and a Chinese telecommunication company which is benefiting from rising revenues per subscriber. We sold our holdings in a gaming stock and an Indian car manufacturer given its exposure to the UK in light of the "Brexit" vote. Given the additional uncertainty, our small direct UK exposure through a couple of holdings is kept under close scrutiny.
