Quarterly fund commentary

China's offshore equity market continued to achieve strong returns in the second quarter on the back of on-going monetary policy easing (reduction of interest rates). The government also made a greater effort to open up its capital markets with Hong Kong via the Shanghai-Hong Kong Stock Connect and the Mutual Fund Recognition programmes. These programmes boosted the Chinese offshore market performance, as it gained a liquidity boost from onshore investors. There was also visible progress on financial reforms, as the Ministry of Finance was active in restructuring local government debt by providing a concrete timeline and details on the nationwide debt swap programme. Growth in China is supported by three pillars; consumption, investment and exports. Looking ahead, we believe consumption is likely to be the key driver of growth, rather than exports or investment. As such, we continued to find many what we believe to be attractive stock opportunities in consumer companies with sustainable industry leadership and strong competitive advantages that are trading at below what we consider to be fair value. While market volatility may continue in the near term given the uncertainties surrounding Greece and sentiment swings in China, we remain focused on bottom-up stock selection, seeking to invest in companies that potentially can deliver attractive sustainable long term returns over the economic cycle.

Risk Warnings

The value of investments and any income will fluctuate (this may partly be the result of exchange rate fluctuations) and investors may not get back the full amount invested. As a large portion of the fund is invested in less developed countries, you should be prepared to accept significantly large fluctuations of the value of the fund. As this fund is invested in a particular geographical region, you should be prepared to accept greater fluctuations of the value of the fund than for a fund with a broader investment mandate. The fund may invest in certain securities listed in China which can involve significant regulatory constraints that may affect the liquidity and/or the investment performance of the fund. The risks described herein are the fund specific material risks. For more information please consult the current fund and share class specific Key Investor Information Document (KIID) and for a complete set of risks the current prospectus. If you are unsure of any of these risks please contact your advisor.
