Quarterly fund commentary

The European Central Bank (ECB) met twice during the quarter, with no announced changes to the base or deposit rates. This decision marks the end of a strong year for the European economy. The ECB's messaging evolved with downside risks to the economy disappearing in the wake of higher than anticipated growth. The risk of deflation has disappeared, one of the factors that continues to drive the euro higher. The likelihood of short term interest rate rise remains low, with a rate hike not predicted until late 2018. During his October conference, the ECB president, Mario Draghi delivered an upbeat assessment of the Eurozone's economic recovery. The ECB announced that it will wind down its €2tn quantitative easing programme from January, halving the amount of asset purchases from €60bn to €30bn. It will continue to buy €30bn bonds a month until September 2018. Proceeds from any bonds that mature during this period will be reinvested. The ECB's headline inflation target rate of near, but less than 2% continues to be some way off due to subdued price pressures. However, the rise in the euro and rising bond yields, if anything, will dampen price pressures. That being said, the ECB are likely to keep interest rates at record lows of 0% for the base rate and -0.4% for the bank deposit rate until inflation target are near to being reached. It is forecast that the inflation target will be likely reached in 2019, based on current projections.

Risk Warnings

The value of investments and any income will fluctuate (this may partly be the result of exchange rate fluctuations) and investors may not get back the full amount invested. Debt instruments are exposed to credit risk which is the ability of the borrower to repay the interest and capital on the redemption date. The fund's performance may be adversely affected by variations in the exchange rates between the base currency of the fund and the currencies in which the investments are made. Changes in interest rates will result in fluctuations in the value of the fund and the effects of inflation may result in a reduction in the value of your investment.

This information is available using the contact details of the issuer and is without charge. Further information on our products is available using the contact details shown. The yields shown are expressed as a % per annum of the current NAV of the fund. They are an estimate for the next 12 months, assuming that the fund's portfolio remains unchanged and there are no defaults or deferrals of coupon payments or capital repayments. Cash income is estimated coupons from bonds. The gross current yield is an indication of the expected cash income over the next 12 months. The estimated gross redemption yield is a longer-term picture indicating expected annual total return. This means that in addition to expected cash income, it includes the amortised annual value of unrealised capital gains or losses of bond holdings currently held by the fund, calculated with reference to their current market price and expected redemption value made upon maturity of the bonds. Neither of the yields is guaranteed. Nor do they reflect the fund charges or the entry charge of the fund. Investors may be subject to tax on distributions. Subscriptions of shares are only accepted on the basis of the most up to date legal offering documents.
